

COMMUNITY RESTITUTION

Community restitution may be ordered by the court as a part of a probationer's Conditions of Probation. Under this condition, a probationer gives back and restores the harm done to the community by working, individually or as a part of a work crew at an approved nonprofit or government agency, until the ordered hours are completed. Each probationer is interviewed by the Community Restitution Coordinator to best match the probationer's skills and abilities to the needs of the agency. The Coordinator works with community agencies to serve their needs at no cost to the agency.

